

Research & Professional skills

We offer a wide range of problem solving and research skills in our team, from core science & technology, through to business and management.

We also have access to many other specialists. Further, working to develop your teams, in personal and professional skills will enable your teams to be more effective and productive.

Disruptive Innovation

A 'disruptive innovation' is a successfully exploited product, service or business model that significantly transforms a mainstream market. We offer systematic tools (based on extensive EU research) to highlight your vulnerabilities and turn them into competitive advantage.

Systematic Innovation based on TRIZ

TRIZ is used successfully by major organisations to increase their creative potential in areas such as product design. Recent innovation has transformed the tools for use in organisational & business development. We offer you innovation, from product design to services and management.

We plan and project manage, organisational and cultural change projects and programmes. We establish the reasons and dimensions of change and create and manage the environment for change. This includes reorienting, reinvigorating & restructuring unproductive teams and sections.
